A VERY FAST BEARD.

On Stanton street resides three brothers, triplets, and three persons never lived who looked so much alike. To make this more noticeable they take particular pains to dress exactly alike particular pains to dress exactly alike and have any amount of fun by being mistaken one for another. But they are very quiet men and enjoy the botheration of both friend and stranger with undemonstrative delight. Not long ago one of them went into a barber shop to get shaved, and the good natured Tenton proceeded to reap his stubble in the most approved manner. In about an hour another of the brothers went into the same shop on the same erand. The the same shop on the same erand. The barber looked at him with protading small house and iot.
